The right page of the musical score consists of a grid of 10 horizontal staves, identical in structure to the left page. A small black square is positioned at the top center of the grid. Black dots representing notes are scattered across the grid, with a higher density in the first four columns and the middle section of the staves.
